² n=373 (2000), n=336 (2002), n=365 (2006) and n=457 (2008) participants indicated no behavioral intentions (definitely not) of smoking within the next year, suggesting they may be in a stage of smoking cessation. These participants were omitted from analyses.
